

A Call to Action!

Successful Tobacco Control for the Future

Cardiff International Arena 28th - 29th April 2008

Smoking is the greatest cause of preventable death and illness in the UK. Currently the smoking prevalence rate in the UK is 27%. Other countries and states in the world such as Sweden, Australia and California have successfully reduced their smoking prevalence rates to well below 20%. So what are we doing to achieve or even to better this prevalence rate?

At a time of a UK wide ban on smoking in public places there is a danger that many will believe the job of curtailing tobacco use has been done. Working as we currently are will not bring about rapid enough declines in tobacco use.

A Call to Action! is a tobacco control conference that asks what is required for the UK to achieve markedly reduced prevalence rates and what are the changes we need to implement now to achieve them?
